

Speech on Consonant Sounds /j/, /z/. /ʒ/

Consonant Sounds: A speech sound produced in the oral cavity with either partial or total obstruction to the oral cavity pulmonic aggressive air stream coming from the lungs is called consonant sound.

There are actually twenty four consonant sounds in the English language. Here's the chart below

Manner of articulation, state of the glottis.

Manner of Articulation	State of Glottis		Place of Articulation
	Voiceless	Voiced
PLOSIVE	p	b	Bilabial
	t	d	Alveola
	k	g	Velar
FRICATIVE	f	v	Labio-dental θ	ð	Dental
	s	z	Alveolar
	ʃ	ʒ	Palato-Alveolar
	h		Glottal
AFFRICATES	ts	dʒ	Palato-Alveolar or post Alveolar
LATERAL		l	Alveolar
ROLLS		r	Alveolar
SEMI-VOWEL		w	Bilabial
		j	Palatal
NASAL		m	Bilabial
		n	Alveolar
		ŋ	Velar

Palatal

/j/ sound is a semi vowel sound. Examples of words include: toy, suit, tune, year, few, view, Europe, educate, student, union, use, onin, queeue, stew, new, pure, yeast, yes, yatch etc.

There is a very important point to note about this particular sound. In some words, it can be found before /u/ or /u:/ and in such words it may or may not be represented by any letter of the alphabet. Such words include: cure /kjuə/ huge /hju:dʒ/ tune /tju:n/ few /fju:/, university /ju:nivɜːsəti/ beauty /bjuti/ ewe /ju:/ Europe /juərəʊp/ etc.

/z/ This is a voiced alveolar. This sound is found in the following: has, is, does, rose, ooze. boys, tells, phrase, examination, exact etc.

/ʒ/ The /ʒ/ sound is voiced palatal alveolar fricative: This sound is found in words such as: pleasure, seizure, prestige, television, conclusion, casual, measure, invasion, provision, leisure etc.

Assignment

Study the consonant chart in your note