

Edit

Countable and uncountable nouns

Nouns are both countable and uncountable depending on the structure.

Countable nouns: countable nouns refers to individual, identifiable things that can be counted. They have both singular and plural forms . E.g " a bag " "two bags" " child" , " Children"

Uncountable nouns: These are nouns that cannot be counted individually. They have no plural form, they usually describe substances, concepts or qualities e.g "sickness" , Rice, water.

Nouns can be countable or uncountable as in the table below

	Used as uncountable noun	Used as countable noun
Meat	I gave up eating meat a few months ago (Food)	I hate eating red meat like beef and lamb (Types of meat)
Fruit	The fruit was too sour to eat (food)	She sells fruits at the market stall(kinds of fruit)
Experience	My lack of practical experience was a disadvantage (Skill or knowledge)	It was her first experience of living alone(an incident that affects you)

Tools

Mobile View

Share

Edit on PC

