Mechanics in writing refer to the technical rules used to make writing clear, readable, and meaningful. They include : capitalization, punctuation, spelling, spacing, indentation, handwriting, and paragraphing. These mechanics ensure good communication between the writer and the reader.

Components of Writing Mechanics.

1] Capitalization : Capital letters are used : a] to begin every sentence. b] for proper nouns [names of people, places, days, months, etc.] c] for the pronoun 'I' d] for titles [Mr., Dr., Chief, Mrs., etc.] Examples : a] Mr Ade lives in Lagos b] She said, "I will travel tomorrow".

2] Punctuation Marks : This helps to clarify meaning, show pauses and organise written ideas.

Examples of punctuation marks include :

A] Full stop or the Period [.] : Ends a statement and is used after abbreviations and initials.

B) Question mark:- (?) We use the question mark to end sentences that ask for a reply and direct questions.

Examples: Will you give me the book?

Will he come?

Many questions are signaled by question words like 'who', 'which', 'whose', 'whom', when, where, why, and how?

Whose clothes are these?

Which is the old woman's house?

C] Exclamation Mark [!] : Is used after interjections and exclamatory sentences. Eg. Hello !, Wow !, What a beautiful dress !

D) Semi- colon;/ : Is used to join together independent clauses when a conjunction is not used. Eg. Man proposes; God disposes.

E] Apostrophe ['] : This is used to indicate possession or ownership. Eg. John's father, the boy's books.

F] Quotation Marks [or inverted commas] : [“ ” , ` ’] This is used to enclose a direct speech. Eg. “ this is our house”, said the boy.

3] Spelling : Correct spelling enhances clarity

4] Paragraphing : Paragraphs help to organise ideas.

5] Handwriting and Legibility : Handwriting should be neat, consistent, properly spaced and easily readable.

STUDENTS' ACTIVITIES:- The students copy the notes.

STEP IV:- APPLICATION

Mode: Individual

TEACHER'S ACTIVITIES:- The teacher give the students a passage which is not punctuated and ask the students to copy the passage and put correct punctuation.
