LESSON PRESENTATION

Step 1: IDENTIFICATION OF PRIOR IDEAS

Mode: Individual

Teacher's Activities: Teacher asks students:

1. What is an essay?
2. Have you ever written an essay to explain something?

3. What do you do when you want to teach someone how something works?

Students' Activities: Students respond based on their previous knowledge and experiences in essay writing.

Step 2: EXPLORATION

Mode: Entire Class

Teacher's Activities: Teacher introduces the concept of an expository essay.

What is an Expository Essay?

An expository essay is a type of writing that explains, informs, or describes a topic clearly using facts, examples, and logical arrangement of ideas. It does not express personal emotions but focuses on giving information.

Students' Activities: Students listen attentively, repeat key points, and take notes.

Step 3: DISCUSSION

Mode: Entire Class

Teacher's Activities: Teacher explains the features and structure of an expository essay.

Features of an Expository Essay:

- Clear explanation of ideas
- Use of facts and examples
- Simple and formal language
- Logical arrangement of paragraphs
- No emotional or biased expressions

Structure:

- Introduction – Introduces the topic.
- Body Paragraphs – Explain the topic with facts and examples.
- Conclusion – Summarises the main points.

Sample Topic: “The Importance of Clean Water”

The teacher writes a short model paragraph on the board and explains paragraphing and linking words.

THE IMPORTANCE OF CLEAN WATER

Clean water is one of the most essential resources for human survival. Every living thing depends on water to live, grow, and remain healthy.

Firstly, clean water is necessary for drinking and cooking. When water is pure and safe, it prevents diseases such as cholera and typhoid. In addition, it helps the body to function properly by aiding digestion and maintaining body temperature.

Secondly, clean water is important for sanitation and hygiene. People use water to bathe, wash clothes, and clean their environment. As a result, communities with access to clean water often experience fewer outbreaks of illness. Schools and hospitals especially require a steady supply of safe water to maintain cleanliness and protect lives.

Furthermore, clean water supports agriculture and food production because farmers need it to grow crops and raise animals.

Finally, clean water contributes to economic and social development. When people spend less time searching for water or treating water-borne diseases, they can focus on education, work, and community growth.

In conclusion, clean water is not just a basic need but a foundation for a healthy and productive society. Therefore, governments and individuals must work together to protect water sources and ensure that everyone has access to safe and clean water.

Students' Activities: Students suggest points, copy notes, and ask questions.

Step 4: APPLICATION

Mode: Entire Class / Individual

Teacher's Activities: Teacher gives a class writing task:

Class Activity:

Make an outline of an essay with the topic, "Why Education is Important."

Students' Activities: Students write individually in their notebooks using correct paragraph structure.

Step 5: EVALUATION

Mode: A Couple of Students

Teacher's Activities: Teacher asks students to:

1. Define an expository essay.
2. Mention two features of an expository essay.
3. State the three parts of an essay.
4. Read their written paragraph aloud.

Students' Activities: Students respond orally and present their written work.

ASSIGNMENT:

Write an essay of not less than 300 words on "The Effects of Social Media on Students."
