

EXPOSITORY ESSAY

Meaning of Expository Essay

An expository essay is a type of essay that explains, describes, or gives information about a topic in a clear and logical way.

It does not involve storytelling or arguing. The writer only presents facts and explanations.

Purpose of Expository Essay

The purpose of an expository essay is to:

Explain an idea or topic

Give information

Teach or inform the reader

Features / Characteristics

An expository essay:

Is written in simple and clear language

Uses facts, examples, and explanations

Does not include personal opinions or emotions

Is usually written in the present tense

Is well arranged in paragraphs

Types of Expository Essay

1. Descriptive Essay – describes a person, place, or thing
2. Process Essay – explains how something is done
3. Definition Essay – explains the meaning of a term
4. Cause and Effect Essay – explains reasons and results

Structure of an Expository Essay

1. Introduction

Introduces the topic

Gives a brief explanation of what the essay is about

2. Body Paragraphs

Each paragraph explains one main point

Facts and examples are used

Ideas are arranged logically

3. Conclusion

Summarizes the main points

Ends the essay neatly

Examples of Expository Essay Topics

The Importance of Education

How to Prepare a Good Meal

Uses of the Internet

Causes of Examination Malpractice

Important Tips

Write clearly and neatly

Avoid storytelling

Avoid personal opinions like “I think”

Go straight to the point