

Structure: Adjectival Clause

An adjectival or relative clause: Is a subordinate clause that performs the function of an adjective. It describes or tells more about a noun or pronoun.

The following subordinating conjunctions usually introduce adjectival clause : who, whom, whose, that, which, where, when.

This qualifies the noun or pronoun that precedes it in a sentence. Examples

- i. I released the project to somebody who appears to be reasonable in the class.
Function qualifies the pronoun “somebody”
- ii. It was he who slapped me.
Who slapped me” qualifies the pronoun “he”
- iii. The landlord whose house was burgled has reported to the police.
Function: It qualifies the noun “landlord”
- iv. The lady whose car was stolen is crying
Function: It qualifies the noun “lady”
- v. The dress which my husband bought for me suits my shape.
Function: It qualifies noun “dress”
- vi. The house which has been renovated looks very new.
Function: It qualifies the noun “house”
- vii. The government ha equipped the hospital where the renowned doctor works.
Function: It qualifies the noun “hospital”
- viii. She has visited the place where he was born.
Function: It qualifies the noun “places”
- ix. The teacher gave a specific time when he would meet with the students.
Function: It qualifies the noun “time”
- x. He does not remember the day when he was born.
Function: It qualifies the noun “day”

Assignment

Identify and underline the adjectival clause in the following sentences and state their functions

1. The car that was stolen has been found
2. That is the goat that ate my yams
3. The woman whose husband bought a new house has won the election.
4. The government has equipped he hospital where the renowned doctor works
5. The teacher gave a specific time when he would meet with the students.

