

USES OF THE FALLING TUNE

The falling tune is used to make:

Statement of fact.

Examples:

Mary's mother is a police woman.

Bello is my friend.

Give commands.

Examples:

Get out of my class.

Shut the door.

3. Make exclamations

Examples:

What a rainy day!

What a pleasant surprise!

4. Ask Wh-Questions.

Examples:

Where do you live?

How was your bag stolen?

Falling Tune: The falling tune is used in statements, commands (imperatives), exclamations and wh-questions.

Statements: The falling tune is used in declarative sentences (statements).

a) She is intelligent (')

b) They have done their work (')

c) Chinedu is not a man (')

2. Commands (imperatives)

Get out! (') Sit down (') Help me (')

Remember that in commands (imperatives) the subjects are often omitted. Sit down could be "you" or "Joy" sit down

3. Exclamation:

a) Wow! What a beautiful girl (')

b) Ah! Congratulations (')

c) Harrah! You have made it (')

4. Wh- questions; we use falling tune in wh- questions; that is, questions that do not require yes or no answers.

Who are you? (')

When did you come? (')

What are you doing? (')

(Exercise)

Read the following sentences aloud using the correct intonation (tune). Use arrows to indicate the tune.

Where are you going?

2. She is a hardworking student.

3. Follow him

4. He knows her name

5. Get out from here

6. How are they?

7. Ah! What a mess!

