

Structure: Adjectival clause. A clause is a group of words which contains a finite verb and functions as an obligatory part of a sentence. An Adjectival clause is a subordinate clause that qualifies a noun or pronoun.

1. This is the man who killed the snake. Function: Qualifies the noun "man". 2. I like an orange that is good. Function: Qualifies the noun "orange". 3. The pen which I bought has been broken. Function: Qualifies the noun "pen". 4. The teacher who I told you about is my aunty. Function: Qualifies the noun "teacher". 5. She knows the place where they stay. Function: Qualifies the noun "place".